Fletcher was Assistant Surgeon of the Sixth Indiana regiment. He was on intimate terms with Milroy, Reynolds, and Wallace, three of the generals that Indiana furnished to say nothing of Gen. Jeff C. Davis, who had a name confusingly like President Jeff Davis. Jeff C. Davis was very popular with the Indiana troops. Jefferson Davis was very unpopular because he had brought a, charge of cowardice against the 2nd Indiana after the battle of Buena Vista, in Mexico, even after it was proved that the regiment had retreated by order of its colonel.
